POINTS OF INTEREST

Gloucester, Cape Ann — First white man to visit its shores was Thorwald in 1004. Harbor called by Norsemen "Krossanes." Gosnold landed here in 1602 and found the place had been used as a base by Portuguese fishermen. In 1605 Champlain sailed by the Cape but did not land. The next year, September 1606, he entered the harbor which he named Le Beauport and made a map of it. Attacked by 200 Indians and sailed away the next day. In 1614 Capt. John Smith named it Cape Ann after Anne of Denmark, mother of King Charles I. First permanent settlement of the Massachusetts Bay Colony in 1623.

Stage Fort Park at westerly entrance of city. Site of settlement of Massachusetts Bay Colony, 1623-24. Tablet in commemoration of that fact placed on face of large boulder. Conant, Half Moon and Stone beaches.

Rafe's Chasm and Norman's Woe. Scene of "Wreck of the Hesperus." At Magnolia, Hesperus avenue. Fissure in solid rock cliff is 60 feet deep and 12 feet wide.

Mother Ann profile in Stone discovered in 1892 by Capt. William Thompson of Salem at tip end of Eastern Point. Dog Bar breakwater extends from a half mile long, completed in 1904 and extends from this point. On Eastern Point are many of the show residences of the North Shore. "The Ramparts" occupies site of Fort Independence.

Ten Pound Island in outer harbor; government fish hatchery thereon. Used as sheep pasture in early days. Five Pound Island in inner harbor; both so named for amounts in colonial money originally sold for.

Thompson's mountain, or Mt. Anne, West Gloucester, highest elevation on the Cape, 255 feet above sea level. Fine view ranging from Mt. Agamenticus on Maine coast to Wachusett Mountain, Bunker Hill Monument to Boston Bay. Tract given over as reservation in memory of Lawrence Minot; thickly wooded, favorite picnic resort; reached from New Way Lane. Nearby is Haskell's pond, from which city's water is secured.

Ravenswood Park, natural forest area extending from Fresh Water Cove to West Gloucester. Reached from Fresh Water Cove or the so-called Old Salem road, Western avenue. Mason Walton's cabin, "Hermit of Bond's Hill," on this road. Well worth frequenting.

Beacon or Governor's Hill, near center of city, from Washington street. Small reservation at top from which a fine view may be obtained.

Dogtown Commons, site of deserted Revolutionary settlement. Reached from Gee avenue, Riverdale. Fine example of boulder deposits of glacial period. "Whale's Jaw," best known of these boulders, at edge of common. Rocking stone, etc., now taken over by the city as a water shed.

Wharves skirting the water front, interesting as affording "close-up" of fish curing, etc.

Babson House, opposite Ellery House, erected by Col. John Low about 1745. Old slave pens in attic.

Main street, first known as Fore, afterwards as Front street. Principal business avenue. Laid out 1642. Middle street, paralleling Main, contains many old colonial houses and the Judith Sargent house, the grounds of which, originally extending to Main street have been restored.

On Middle street are the First Parish (Unitarian) Church, oldest in Gloucester; Independent Christian (Universalist) first Universalist society in America, church edifice erected 1805; St. John's Episcopal Church, Trinity Congregational Church and the First Baptist Church.

Sawyer Free Library and Reading Room, Middle street, adjoining Unitarian church. Interior fine specimen of colonial woodwork. Originally home of Thomas Sanders, merchant.

Old Town Hall Square, at junction of Middle and Washington streets. Beautiful American Legion Memorial building and monument on which was placed statue of Joan of Arc by Anna Vaughn Hyatt.

Fort Point, at western side of inner harbor, down Commercial street from Main, fortified in 1743. Now Italian quarter and rendezvous of fishermen of that nationality.

Drives around the Cape: Up Washington street, through Riverdale, past Annisquam, Bay View, Lanesville into Pigeon Cove, Rockport and completing the circuit to Gloucester. Almost a continuous ocean view, which was completed when the Bass Rocks-Land's End stretch was completed.

Beaches: Little Good Harbor and Long Beaches, between Bass Rocks and Land's End, Rockport. Wingaersheek Beach, West Gloucester, largest on Cape, two miles long, 600 feet deep at low tide; reached from Essex avenue, West Gloucester, down Concord street.

Quarries at Bay View and Pigeon Cove, among largest in country, near main highway.

Blynman canal, first cut in 1642 by Rev. Richard Blynman, at Western entrance of city.

Drives: "Little Heater," "Dark Hole" at West Gloucester.

Old Salem road, first highway from the town, blazed out in 1626, when part of the settlers went to Salem. Down Hesperus avenue (discontinued in 1892) to Salem. Name erroneously applied to Old Pest House road, leading through Ravenswood park from Western ave.

Who seeks for Heaven alone to save his soul
May keep the path but will not reach the goal—
While he who walks in love may wander far Yet God will bring him where the blessed are.

TO BE WON IN THE MID-WEST

WELL, they're off. The great American presidential race which the key-noters on both sides declare "is fraught with the most crucial and vital import since the foundation of the Republic." Perhaps.

Landon against Roosevelt—or rather the New Deal vs. the Old Regime. What chance success? The Literary Digest which conceived the idea of pre-election straw balloting on a large scale and has been surprisingly successful in its capacity to predict the result inclines (as of June 1) to the belief that the contest is not to be a runaway, although giving the edge to Roosevelt. All other pre-polling adventures prior to the nominations point that way. But they indicated a "fighting chance for the Republicans."

It is admitted that the Republicans have placed in nomination their strongest standard bearers from a political and geographical standpoint. The west is in the saddle. The polling contests agree substantially that the indications are that New England will vote Republican and that New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio and the industrial-agrarian states of the middle west are in the balance. The Southern tier—the razor-back confederacy—is more solidly Democratic than ever. The territory west of the Mississippi, it is claimed, is solidly Democratic. The Republicans must in addition to carrying a solid East have a substantial number of the middle west.

How much state pride may enter into this thing is a question. Landon, Pennsylvania born, may sway the voters of the Keystone state. But there is no doubt of his ability to sweep his own native state and its twin, Nebraska. In Illinois and Ohio the great surprise came in his decisive sweep over Borah in a territory which had been conceded to the latter. No denying his strength.

Although not Illinois born Knox is identified with the fortunes of that state, sufficiently to be of its soil as to have the status of a native son—in a territory where practically all are recent comers. The Republicans have a good chance there and in Ohio as the Democrats.

In addition the Roosevelt cause in that section as well as in the country at large—except in the South—which is off the Republican reckoning—is tremendously handicapped by the fact that the great city and country press is almost solidly lined up against the Democracy. In Chicago and throughout the country the great chain of Hearst papers—largely accountable for placing Landon in nomination—and Col. Knox's own powerful daily which influences and molds opinion in the West, are aggressively for Landon. Then take the farmer press almost solidly aligned in the Republican row. Senator Capper of Kansas monopolizes a chain of the country press in that section—preaching the Republicanism of Landon. Roosevelt in this most important respect of publicity is practically hamstrung. His only recourse is the radio. Even in New York he breaks less than even in this important respect.

Coming East what are the chances? The Digest's and other pollings indicate that New York State is debatable, the agrarian section Republican, while Manhattan and the cities are decidedly Democratic. But here again comes an old factor to be reckoned with. Tammany has been practically ignored by the Administration. Its leaders and followers are sore. But they have a habit of keeping their grievances to themselves and registering their resentments on election day. In the past they have determined presidential elections. Are they going to tear their shirts off for the Administration? History has it that the Republicans have aforesaid swapped off votes with them to the mutual advantage of both. History may repeat itself.

One of the negro speakers at the Republican convention in placing a candidate in nomination for the vice presidential nomination made this significant statement. "Our people in 1932 for the first time deserted the party which gave them freedom but we have returned solidly to the party this year." There are a hundred thousand votes, men and women, in the Harlem district most of which went Democratic in 1932. If they backtrack—what? The Italian vote in the city will go solidly Democratic. Reason—sanctions, ignored, if you get the idea.

Another great factor in New York City—one out of every three inhabitants—the Hebrew vote. This element views political contents from one point alone and that is "Which party is best for the business interests of the country?" And a mighty good yardstick it must be admitted. From their powerful international banking houses down to the smallest enterprise this will be the crucial test at the ballot box.

Of all things, these super-business men desire a stable and sound currency fixed on the one and only basis which counts the world over—gold.

Landon went courageously out of his way to declare to the nominating convention that he favors a monetary system based on the gold standard, demonstrating that he has backbone. The policy of the present administration in regard to fixed value of the gold dollar has not been exactly reassuring. However, it has accumulated the largest gold reserve in vaults in the national history.

Now turn to the Roosevelt bright side. Its big potential asset—the X of the problem—the earned increment accruing from the colossal outlay of billions in relief work. True it is that many of its recipients rebel against the necessity of its acceptance. The ambitious young man doesn't want to be submerged into virtually a peonage class, his wife and children borne down and branded with the stigmata of pauperism. Much of this rebellion is reported throughout the country. On the contrary, especially in the large cities, are swarms that have no qualms whatever on this point—the question of self-respect does not enter into their calculations. It may be true, as has been charged, that this group has little gratitude, having been educated to the idea that the government is duty bound to support them anyway and may bite the hands that feed them—no matter who may be taxed out of the earnings of a lifetime by the process. But gratitude has been defined by some cynic as a lively sense of favors to come, not what has been received, and by that same token that noble army of the hard-worked may be depended upon to line up with the grand almoners of the national dough dish on

OLD DOGTOWN

By Alexander Garfield Tupper

The paths are deep o'er hubbled road,
Where feet of early settlers
trod;

Where thorny vines and thickets lie
And cedars point up to the sky;

Where sweet the breath of pink wild rose
Is mingled with each wind that blows;

The nectar of the ocean's bowl,
That simmers where the great waves roll!

From heights, our gaze for miles can reach
The dim shore lines beyond the beach;

And silence broken by the bird—
Her song, with nature sweet is heard!

A place of joy and beauteous rest—
A spot on earth's fair bosom prest!

On winding roads, through hub-
bled hills,
Our feet pass o'er the sacred soil

Where folks of Dogtown often
trod—
Where God of Nature blessed their toil

And gave them solace where they found
A refuge during war's grim strife!

On Dogtown's lovely, flowered ground,
The grey stones mark the resting place

Of many a pilgrim, where he paused
From toil, with weather-beaten
face,

The rose of morn upon his cheek,
To hear the sea's strange under-tone—

Voices that sing good will or woe
Drift o'er from sands of Win-gaersheek!

A cadence comes with laugh or moan
On winds of destiny that blow!

OPENING OF A NEW ART GALLERY AT ROCKPORT

By "Nemo"

The Barn Door has been opened by Mrs. Marguerite Preble and is not run under the so-called New Deal. The collection of some 300 paintings, water colors, etchings, pencil drawings and tempra sketches. Antiques, pewter and glass is also exhibited. The Barn Door is next to the Blacksmith Shop on South street just off Dock square. Mrs. Preble has left the old barn in its former state of yesteryear minus the haymows and other accessories which go to make up any well regulated barn of the past. Of course pictures would not shine out like stars at night on the old brown aged boards, so the manager has covered half the barn walls with a roofing paper which is adaptable for a background for paintings. The walls teem with the works of seasoned artists who come to Rockport to paint and enjoy the arty atmosphere of this quaint old town by the rockbound coast.

It would seem that Rockport acts like a magnet drawing many artists and art students from all over this country and the urge is so great on their arrival that it does not take the artists long to shed their city clothes for smocks, berets and then to the painting grounds. About the first subject is Motif No. 1 and then the streets of Rockport with its snowy white houses. There is a long list of paintable subjects at which to wield a paint brush.

Now the old Barn Door Gallery beckons the people from the sidewalk into its well-stocked gallery, there to feed one's soul on good, wholesome art which is not tainted by modernism. This gallery did not have to feature a pink tea in order to bait the would-be-buyers into this exhibit of worthwhile work. This show stands for art with a large "A."

There are forty artists exhibiting, mostly those who summer at Rockport and Gloucester. The exhibitors are as follows: Alfred V. Churchill, former art director of Smith's College, Northampton; Earl E. Sanborn, famous stained-glass designer; Blanche E. Colman, Stanley Woodward, Galen J. Perritt, Marion P. Slone, former art editor of the Boston Journal; John M. Buckley, Samuel Hershey, chairman of the Jury for 1936 of the Rockport Art Association, Parker Perkins, Harry Leith-Ross, Harry Vincent, Dawson Watson, winner of the $5,000 cactus contest for one of his oil paintings exhibited in Arizona; G. T. Margeson, Emile A. Gruppe, M. Bennett-Brown, Elizabeth R. Wetherington, Charles Knapp, Lester Stevens, May Wagner, Cora Holden, George L. Boutillier, P. J. Paul, Elinor Goodridge, E. R. Wait, F. M. Rines, Ruth Swett, noted etcher; Aldro T. Hibbard, Sidney Raynes, Jacquelin Hudson, Addison Le Boutilier, Gordon Grant, artist, etcher and playwright; John Taylor Arms and Thomas Nason.

We have only space for a few of the artists who have climbed near and to the top rungs of the art ladder of fame, and the artists who are not quite at the top but are still stepping fast and will no doubt be among some of the top-notchers before very long with A.N.A.'s and N.A.'s attached to their names.

While Emil Gruppe does not wear flocks of medals on his chest he can still paint a good picture, and "Wonder Bird," "Bickford's Float" are among the paintings shown in the exhibit. Lester Stevens technique is centered on a rock study, and the painting has a searchlight-effect thrown over it, for it would seem that Lester knew his pigments, and his paintings always dominate the central position in an art gallery. Perkins and Perritt are masters of seascapes and their work always makes a nice note of color, and pleasing to look at. Harry Vincent has a fine sketch of an Italian scene; his work was always admired by the reviewer. Marion Sloan has captured the very atmosphere of the mountains, and her mountain river painting is delicate in color tones.

What would any exhibition be without Motif No. 1? John Buckley has sent this well-known subject done in the winter time, when mother earth is wrapped in a mantle of snow. This exhibition is free to the public, and Mrs. Preble extends a cordial invitation to attend.

WAITING

(By John Burroughs)

Serene, I fold my hands and wait,
Nor care for wind, or tide, or sea;

I rave no more 'gainst time or fate,
For, lo! my own shall come to me.

I stay my haste, I make delays,
For what avails this eager pace?
I stand amid the eternal ways,
And what is mine shall know my
face.

Asleep, awake, by night or day,
The friends I seek are seeking
me;
No wind can drive my bark astray,
Nor change the tide of destiny.

What matter if I stand alone?
I wait with joy the coming years;
My heart shall reap where it has sown,
And garner up its fruit of tears.

The waters know their own and draw
The brook that springs in yonder
hight;
So flows the good with equal law,
Unto the soul of pure delight.

The stars come nightly to the sky;
The tidal wave unto the sea;
Nor time, nor space, nor deep, nor high,
Can keep my own away from
me.

A "TRANSPLANTED" COLONIAL HOUSE

Brought From Connecticut And Set Up In The Bass Rocks District

"AS ANCIENT IS THIS HOSTELRY AS ANY IN THE LAND MAY BE."

No doubt about that. Built and used as a Tavern in 1649 and continued as such 200 years. In the last century known as The Old Freeman House—now The Stage Coach Inn. Photo taken just before restoration.

ON THE RIDGE OF LAND paralleling the road from Gloucester in the Bass Rocks section has recently been reconstructed a house of the earliest New England type of which there are several examples on Cape Ann, the two-storied oblong structure with what is termed in this locality a leanto, in the rear, the roof sloping down to a one story height—the service end of the house, in New England.

At first glance the casual observer might wonder why the builder put his house in such an exposed position galeswept as it is by land and sea for the early colonial was careful to protect himself from the elements by building under the lee of a hill or bluff fronting southward.

An experienced antiquary, specializing in old houses soon detects one of two features of construction alien to Essex county architecture, outstanding of which is the center chimney built of large oblong blocks of light grayish mica stone not indigenous to this region.

The explanation is that the house has been transferred here. Harry S. Conant, born and "raised" in Gloucester, now of Bridgewater, is one of those specialists in old houses.

Motoring through Thompson, (not Thompsonville) Conn., he noticed an abandoned house in the outskirts. He had no trouble in buying it, having a commission from a client Mr. and Mrs. Edward Ingraham of Cambridge for just such a structure.

His father owned quite a tract of land in the Bass rocks section here and that was selected as the new site. So with a gang he set at work laboriously taking apart the solid oak-timbers of more than two centuries—seemingly hardened by age, loaded them on twelve trucks and carted them to the present site.

In those days wooden bolts called trunnels (dictionary-trenails)—were used in ship and housebuilding. These were forced out and numbered as was every timber, plank and board in the house and reassembled as in the original. The house was built by David Shapley in 1708. Mr. Conant thinks it is an assemblage of two houses, what is termed the addition in reality being a house built earlier on another site and removed to and joined with the original structure—this conclusion being arrived at from various signs and additions apparent to the expert in these matters but to the ordinary observer it appears as if built at one time so well is it coordinated. Mr. Conant will point out where the ends of the beams and timbers of the original house joins those of the supposed second section.

While there are some embellishments of a later period the house remains as originally built, a good specimen of the earliest type of the well-to-do-colonial farmer or shipmaster with a large family which was the vogue of those days. For instance the doorway of the house with its fluted columns is of the type, affected by the prosperous, just before the Revolution. It might well have been added by that generation of occupants and by no means swears at the original. It was picked up by Mr. Conant from the Hosea Ballou house in Cumberland, R. I. A similarly ornate corner cupboard of the same later period has been installed in the dining room—an indication of the Forsyte progress, upward in the world — as regards human habitations.

But all in all the old colonial dominates, the sumpter beams champered and stopped, the wide floor boards (the original) painted with yellow and other colors—the early settlers used yellow ochre—as was the custom before “sanding” and later home-made rugs came into fashion. Old side wall wide boarding is retained in the interior and the sturdy wooden door latch, as of old with the latch-string survives. Reproductions of early colonial wall paper have been placed in some of the rooms.

Of course all old houses have their secret doors—this one—two of them. Their general location will be pointed out. Find and open them if you can. Easy when explained. Handy to escape one's creditors or the sheriff.

One leads by a devious winding, confusing route—calculated to throw a pursuer off the scent—to a large space formerly unoccupied in which a gas heating apparatus has been installed but there is no indication of it throughout the house the registers being artfully concealed by panels high up. And this reminds one that the rooms are low-studded about seven feet.

In the rear or service end is the huge fire place of some seven feet hearth in which a quarter cord of wood might have been burned at once, when wood was plentiful and inexpensive. All the old kitchen utensils are there. Above is a lintel twelve by ten of solid oak some of which had been charred and fallen off, but restored by the joiner—shipwrights of the marine railways. And in this service room—the old time colonial cooks had ample elbow room—is another secret entrance worked by another sort of mysterious open sesame gadget.

Originally the house had a cellar reached from the inside of the house. Here was a departure from the Cape Ann scheme which had the cellar door entrance from the outside from which the theme—motif of a song of long ago boyhood days “Old Grimes Cellar Door.”

The stout steps of this cellar were constructed in a peculiar manner of foot square oak logs sawed diagonally in two and bolted down (with trunnels) solidly on four inch runway planks. Their name “puncheon stairs.” Why—?. What is a puncheon stair may some of the younger generation ask? A puncheon, was a large narrow shaped hogshead capacity from 60 to 150 gallons. Its contents were generally—in these parts the habitat of seafaring men — Jamaica, Bacardi, Porto “Reek,” Santa Cruz or other delectable decoctions brought home and stored in the cellar in case of sickness or otherwise. “West Injy” goods was the sign of the local grocers who sold in smaller quantities to the retail trade.

This puncheon with two or three stout fellows on the long bight of a parbuckle rope was lowered down these steps into the cellar and placed on a low skid, end out with a wooden spigot in the lower side of the head. This has been placed on the stairs on the western side of the service end of the house. Its general appearance shows that it received rough usage in its days.

Now the Gloucester mariners of these old days, “when man lived in a grander way and dispensed ampler hospitality” used hard Cape Ann granite for their cellar steps—than which there is no tougher known—the Connecticut white stone being of a softer and less resisting composition. And this primes the memory that the outstanding feature which greets the visitor is the original door step of the house carefully set in the pathway six feet square, eight inches thick and weighing two and a half tons. It is of a sort of mica stone found in the Connecticut territory.

A rollicking ditty, of the olden time, now out of vogue, had that big was-sail bowl, the puncheon, for its inspiration. The opening verse

“I wish I had a barrel of rum and sugar a hundred pound
A puncheon tub to put it in and a stick to stir it round,” etc. etc.

The Jolly Good fellow song of ye olden tyme. A puncheon tub was made by sawing a headed hogshead exactly in two—in common use by fishermen up to recently.

To enumerate the numerous features about the house, butterfly hinges and the like names which fall trippingly off the tongue of those in the know would be quite a catalogue.

Suffice to stay the undoubted inspiration of these old houses in Connecticut came from Cape Ann. It is particularly interesting to note that in the Nutmeg states Tercentenary observance of last year that Cape Ann contributed some its best stock-names that have carried on governors, judges, business men, theologians, professional men and others. In 1647 Rev. Richard Blynman who had come over to Cape Ann from Plymouth in 1642 having had a row with the Pilgrims, decided to move on to what is now Connecticut territory. So with him went Obadiah Bruen first town clerk, who carried off the first town records which were never recovered, William Addes, Christopher Avery, Hugh Calkin, (who died in Norwich in 1690) John Coit, John Collins, John and William Durgee, William Hough, William Kenie, Thomas Kent, ancestor of the famous Chancellor Kent, jurist, William Meades, Ralph Parker, Hugh Pritchard, John Sadler, William Southmeade, William Wellman, and others. All did not go with Blynman but departed a few years later after he had spied out the land and sent back favorable news. The most of the subsequent departures were in 1658 although there are a few between that time and Blynman's going.

In fact the first covered wagon trek to the Western Reserve which was eventually stopped at the Golden gate originated in Greater Cape Ann district by Rev. Manasseh Cutler of the Ipswich district. Blynman undoubtedly made his removal to New London by water where the Cape Anners settled. There was a Cape Ann lane there up to a few years ago, if indeed the name does not survive today.

During the past fifty years there has been an unnecessary destruction of these very early houses. The Richard Dike mansion, as it was termed now the old Wheeler house at Wheelers point circa 1688, the Sylvester Everleigh tavern at West Gloucester 1648 still a going tavern “as ancient as any in the land may be,” the Rev. John White house built about 1710 known now as the Ellery house and the Old Castle at Pigeon cove are examples surviving, the Everleigh and White house having the second story overhang with ornamental pendants all of the same generic type as the Connecticut structure, transplanted to Cape Ann soil.

EASTERN POINT

The presence of the large ocean-going steam yachts, Viking owned by George F. Baker of New York and the Placida of Wilmington, Del., in the harbor during the week lent a decidedly picturesque touch to the seascape. Invariably the owner, when here for the first time descant on the great desirability of Gloucester in every respect—fine and secure anchorage—a base of supplies, including marine railways, ship chandlery, outfittings, provisions, water, etc., not to be equalled along the coast. In days to come when the Eastern Point Yacht clubhouse shall become an actuality Gloucester will become the leading yacht rendezvous along the Atlantic coast for the largest as well as the craft of more modest size.

Miss Lucy Taggart, sister of a prominent Indiana politician, Hon. Thomas Taggart, has after an absence of one season returned to occupancy of her home at Eastern Point.

Mrs. Alonzo Wilder Pollard and family of Boston returned in June to "Barlevento" which she has made her summer home for a number of seasons.

Mrs. Edwin Bradley Currier of Boston is in occupancy of her cottage in Fort Hill road.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. F. McCann (Woolworth) and family of New York who last season purchased "Beauport," for years the summer home of the late Harry Sleeper, have come to the house for the season. Their ocean-going yacht, one of the largest on the coast which has been a conspicuous object in the harbor for the past two seasons, has not yet made this port.

Mrs. Frances M. Carter of Franklin, N. H., one of the prominent women yachtsmen of the locality opened "Harbor Lights," Stewart ave., early in June.

Mr. and Mrs. Seth K. Ames of Melrose Highlands are once again established at "Sunset Rock" cottage which they have made their summer home for some years.

Mr. and Mrs. William D. Elwell and family of Arlington have returned to their Edgemoor road cottage for the summer.

ROCKPORT ART GALLERIES

MILADY GOES SHOPPING

Gloucester, Mass.

Dear Eloise,

The news I know you have been patiently been waiting for is here. The prodigal son has arrived safely at home. Charles Marsh is no Clark Gable I assure you, but he has that college boy manliness that has a winning way with everyone. I shall endeavor to describe him to you as accurately as I can. He is a few inches short of six feet tall, broad athletic shoulders, and medium brown hair. He has a nice homely face, the sort of homely face that inspires trust. He seems so steady and slow, but actually he is brilliant.

So much has been happening in the Marsh household since his arrival, I hardly know where to begin to tell you all about the good times I have had.

First of all, a party was given at Stage Coach Inn in honor of the return of the family's pride and joy (you know what a favorite an only son in a family is.) Dinner was splendid, consisting of Caviar Canape, Celery, Olives, Nuts, Clam Broth Bellevue, Lobster Newburg, Potatoes, Chiffonade, Salad, Fresh Vegetables, Ice Cream, Cake, and Coffee. Dinner and conversation were progressing smoothly, then Mrs. Marsh, who by the way is over her siege of poison ivy, jumped up quickly and accidentally knocked over a tray of consomme a waiter was carrying to a nearby table. (Honestly, Eloise, I never could figure how one woman could get into so much trouble.) Charles with his usual debonair manner straightened things out to the convenience of all concerned, and then someone suggested dancing. The older folks were safely installed in the Marsh home for the continuance of the evening and the younger folks prepared to "trip the light fantastic" at the nearby "Le Rendezvous." Eloise, it is a darling open air dance hall with perfect lighting effects and so cool that it was just the place to add the finishing touch to the party.

Business first always makes pleasure after more enjoyable and so for a few days I settled down to my duties as private secretary, but found it rather difficult with Charles presenting his irresistible invitations to me. With no slight deliberation, we argued pro and con my career and his pleasure. We finally ended in an amusing agreement. It was decided that he would help me with my shopping and replying to letters, telegrams; and in return for his generosity, I was to play golf with him when our duties were completed, and so we set about on our tour of inspection of the Gloucester stores.

Of course the first thing to be considered was some sort of a snappy golf outfit, and the most natural place to go for perfect satisfaction was Mimi's. A blessing to me, they specialize in small sizes, and all I had to do was explain what I wanted and there it was—a nifty, navy blue, embroidered lawn dress with red accessories, just suited to playing golf.

Charles, not being a connoisseur of women's wearing apparel, decided to wait for me in the car, but I had a more brilliant idea, and suggested that he go to the Cooperative Bank to pay the second payment on his father's loan.

One of Charles' plans for the summer is a cocktail party for his college friends who are coming this weekend. Bearing this in mind, I recalled an exquisitely colorful cocktail set I had been at L. E. Andrews last week. It was a set of ten cocktail glasses each of a different hue. They were set on a green tray. In hopes that it would still be available, Charles and I went to see if it would meet with his approval. He was delighted with it and remarked favorably on my selection (you can imagine how this pleased me).

Thinking of my own necessities, I spotted a waste-paper basket that would be an attraction rather than a detraction to any room. It fit in perfectly with the color scheme of my boudoir. It was a deep rose in color, and ornated with a lovely old-fashioned girl.

Charles was weighed down with bundles and carried them safely to the car. He then questioned me as to where our next stop would be, and looking at the list Mr. Marsh had given me, I found the next place to go was the Gloucester Gas and Electric companies. There we were to buy a stove for the newlyweds. Tak-into consideration the color scheme of the kitchen, we chose a cream-colored gas range. It has all the necessary equipment for an inexperienced housewife.

After being assured that the stove would be properly delivered, we went to the banks, I to the Gloucester National Bank, and Charles to the Cape Ann National Bank, where we attended to our financial interests.

Charles was getting weary of all this dashing around, but I had only a few more things to do, and I wanted to get them finished up.

Provisions must be kept up to par for our expected guests, and I knew Charles would know more of the likes and dislikes than I, so we proceeded to the first National Store. Charles was doing very nicely with his selections, but I chanced to mention that the guests might like to be treated to some of Gloucester's noted seafood. So we added to our purchases several cans of Gorton's Flaked Fish.

The last place I had to go was the Cape Pond Ice Company. The cook has been practically demanding a new refrigerator, as ours is in such a deplorable condition, and knowing the convenience of Joan's Coolerator, Mr. Marsh decided we could not be without one any longer.

Mrs. Marsh is going to New York in a few days and her husband is going to entrust to her care a group of documents concerning our connections with Hornblower and Weeks.

Oh, Eloise, this week has been one round of parties and corking good times. It is glorious to be working with a family that treats you as one of its own rather than considering you a menial.

Charles' guests have arrived and he has asked me to entertain them while he dresses, so please excuse me.

Affectionately,

C. ANNE SHORE.

if indeed the name dies not survive election day. And there are a whole lot of them.

The first to break away from this drole association will be the independent farmers of the Middle West who since its birth have been predominantly with the Republican party and have little in common with the different race stratas of the Eastern cities.

If these mid-westerners are convinced that its own flesh and blood, Landon and Knox, can handle the economic situation which has developed as intelligently and efficiently as the present Democratic setup—is a swing back to the re-born dirt-farmer, Abraham Lincoln-minded and controlled Republican party on the cards? If so convinced the Republican party has a good fighting chance of regaining control. And it is just on this issue—if such it may be termed—that the fight for either side is to be won or lost—a 1936 political winning of the West—just now it looks like 50 - 50.

Tonight, July 25—Gallup Institute gives Landon 16 majority in electoral college. Farm Journal indicates Landon in the lead—West test balloting Sept. 1. All predict close contest.

OUTER CAPE ANN

Never has the North Shore bloomed as beautifully as this season. With copious rains followed by a shower almost every night the ideal conditions for the growth of lush vegetation have not been equalled within memory. Especially has this condition favored the gardens and the growth of banked ramblers which, festooning wall and ledges make an especially attractive setting. The trees never seemed more hardy, vernal or vigorous. This, while the rest of the country was sweltering and the vegetation of all kinds withering in the sun. All in all the North Shore climatically from June 1 to January 1 may not be equalled, all things considered, along the entire Atlantic seaboard.

The Magnolia Beach Club is fairly bustling with activities this season, and men, women and children are equally entertained. Saturday noon the Club was a scene of gaiety with about forty members luncheoning on the beach and veranda, while music completed the joyous tumult. The afternoon was ended amid a frolic of invigorating water sports.

The children this season are having their fun too. Every youngster is extremely excited over the coming ten-mile swimming challenge, and all are in constant practice so he maybe acclaimed the "champ." So many laps a day will be covered until the entire distance is completed.

Entertaining at the Beach Club this week are: Mrs. John Zinnser, party of twelve; Miss Pat Trenor, party of three; Mrs. O. W. Richardson, party of five; and Mr. and Mrs. William Rueter, party of four.

In our initial issue it was stated that Mr. C. McG. Smith a long-time and esteemed summer resident had passed on to the better land. This proves to be like the case of Mark Twain greatly exaggerated. Mr. Smith, all will be gratified to learn, is still with us and (DV) we hope will be with us many years. What better land than Magnolia.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Shaw of Newton have taken the William J. Barry house on Shore road, Magnolia.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Kerrigan of Stoneham have leased "Villa Mare" on Shore road.

Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Hayward of Wayne, Penn., have the Curtis "Mar-ratt" house on the westerly side of Summer street at Manchester Cove.

"L'Abri" has again been opened by Mrs. J. A. Toutain and her daughters Jeanne and Marie Madeleine of New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Walker and family of Malden have joined the summer colony to spend another season.

"Breezy Gables" has been opened by Mrs. Harry J. West of Auburndale.

Dr. and Mrs. Roy Wheeler and family of Cambridge are occupying their home "Eight Gables" for the season.

Miss Henrietta Wiest from York, Pa. is summering at the "Garden House."

Spending another season with us are Mr. and Mrs. James Willing and daughter Frances B. of Waban.

SANDY BAY 18-FOOTERS

ROCKPORT, July 18—The Sandy Bay Yacht Club today sailed its regular championship race along with a challenger team race between the Sandy Bay fleet of the Massachusetts Bay 18-footers and the Boston Bay fleet.

Shirley Brooks' Sally from Boston Bay took the honor position at the finish after fighting it out with Laura Cooney's Onward II on the first time around the triangle inside the outer breakwater. Hosea White's Oriental, another Boston Bay boat, finished second after rounding the first time in third place.

The Boston Bay fleet had an advantage of one point over the Sandy Bay fleet, although it had only three boats against four from the home port.

On the first time around the triangle the race was among Sally, Oriental and Onward II, with the latter rounding the windward mark in first place. However, Sally and Oriental overtook the leader on the run down to the buoy off the inner breakwater, and on the second time around Sally worked out a nice lead over Oriental while the Water Baby, a Sandy Bay boat, finished third and Onward dropped back into fifth place.

The International Star Class ran off the first race of the championship for the Cape Ann district, Sandy Bay and Eastern Point fleets. The Sans Souci, sailed by Jerry Clark, and which was runner up in the Atlantic Coast Olympic trial on Great South Bay, Long Island, two weeks ago, captured today's race. Gifford Beal's Maide IV was second after fighting it out with the Star of India from Eastern Point.

Lindley Dean's Myrtice was the victor in the Sandy Bay 15-footers,

POPINJAY TOPS MOJALA

IN EASTERN POINT RACE

GLOUCESTER, July 18—Four classes made up the fleet racing at Eastern Point this afternoon, an eight-knot fickle southeast breeze coming favoring the craft off the water.

Mojala in the R's got off to fine advantage, turning the first reach at Kettle Island 30 seconds to the good, but Popinjay made off in the bay and romped away from her rival. In the Triangles it was single file formation from the start. Injun always leading with Scalene a consistent runner-up. Tid IV in the Sonders turned in another win.

The Knockabouts sailed the inside course with Clipper chalking up another first. The summary:

MOJALA BEATS POPINJAY

IN EASTERN POINT RACE

GLOUCESTER, July 19—The most satisfactory race thus far this season was sailed at Eastern Point this afternoon in a fairly true and steady, though light breeze.

The hottest contest of the Summer was in the R's. Mojala getting away to a slight advantage with Popinjay overlapping throughout. Try all the tricks he could out of his old ditty bag, Skipper Cox could not edge inside the Mojala, turning on the first leg at Kettle Island with one second's difference.

On the wind to the Whistler it was tack and tack but Cox could not wrangle the weather berth from his antagonist. At this turn a second between the dualists also intervened. On the broad reach home Mojala stretched the margin to six seconds.

A similar close tussle occurred in the first five to finish in the Triangle Class, less than a minute covering these at the finish gun. Cursor was off to a good start and first at the Kettle Island turning with Spray and Injun right at hand. Rounding on the wind these three were kept to starboard inshore, while Idol and Scalene and the rest stood off in the bay getting an offshore slant.

Gorton-Pew Fisheries

GLOUCESTER, MASS.

Founded in 1849

The accurate historical painting from which this picture was made was painted by Alexander Garfield Tupper, Gloucester's artist-poet and is correct in every detail. It represents the landing in 1623 of the Dorchester colonists at Half-Moon beach, Fisherman's Field — now Stage Fort park — where was founded the Massachusetts Bay Colony. It would have been well had this competent artist been commissioned by the government to make a mural representing this outstanding occasion in the nation's history for the new Federal building. See poem in last issue and "Dogtown Common" current number.
